New Service to Help Members Coastline Launches "Member Privilege"

Coastline has announced the addition of a new service for members with personal checking accounts called "Member Privilege" which was effective March 7, 2011.

The overdraft privilege service is designed to help members avoid the potential embarrassment and added expense of having a check returned to a merchant.

"Member Privilege" is not a loan, but a non-contractual courtesy extended to members with individual or jointly- owned checking accounts in good standing. While the member is still charged the credit union's normal paid item fee on the overdraft, if the check is paid, the member is able to avoid the additional charge and embarrassment they would have incurred if the check had been returned to a merchant or business.
